The Honorable Tom Wolf, Governor
Commonwealth of Pennsylvania
225 Main Capitol
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

Dear Governor Wolf:

We are writing to urge you and the Department of Corrections to remove the State Correctional Institution in Mercer from the list of state prisons that may be closed in 2017. SCI Mercer is a keystone in the community in and around Mercer and its closing would be a devastating blow to the local economy, an increased burden for countywide law enforcement, and a potentially counterproductive step in improving the Commonwealth's criminal justice system.

The decline of the manufacturing industry in the 21st century has devastated small-town America. Nowhere is that damage more apparent than in the communities of Western Pennsylvania. Blue-collar areas like Mercer County are struggling to attract high-quality, family-sustaining employment. The county's unemployment rate stands at 5.5 percent—higher than the Commonwealth's 4.9 percent. The population of Mercer County has been bleeding away since the 1980s.

Time and time again, the interests of Washington and Harrisburg have been prioritized over the need to protect small towns and cities like Mercer, Hermitage, and Jamestown. We cannot allow the Commonwealth to turn a blind eye on the men and women who have built this nation on their backs. In 2016, the working class throughout the old manufacturing heart of this country sent a loud, clear message to the seats of power that they will not be taken for granted. The protection of SCI Mercer is an opportunity for you to let these proud citizens know that you have heard their call.

SCI Mercer employs around 400 local workers, meaning its closure would drive the county unemployment rate up nearly one full percent. The corresponding lost wages would reverberate throughout the area's economy as the displaced workers would be forced to restrict spending at other local enterprises, with the potential to remove up to $52 million from circulation. We are grateful that we were recently able to secure a multimodal transportation grant to preserve 700 jobs in Farrell, but coupled with the recent announcements that Macy's and Sears will be closing their stores in Hermitage, that investment would be wiped out by the closing of SCI Mercer.

In an area where the median household income is below $30,000 per year and where 9 percent of the population lives below the poverty line, SCI Mercer is a source of competitive wages, life-saving benefits, and honorable, dignified employment. The prison also provides employment to veterans of our U.S. armed forces who deserve better treatment than a foreclosure on their post-service careers.

The Secretary's announcement that all workers will be offered alternate employment within the Department is a hollow offer, as the nearest facility to Mercer is over an hour away. As you well know, there is limited public transportation infrastructure in Northwestern Pennsylvania, and the cost of maintaining an automobile that must make a two-hour roundtrip commute each day would significantly drive down the benefits of continued employment within the Department.

In fact, steep costs are a broader issue for both the Commonwealth and Mercer County if SCI Mercer were closed. SCI Mercer has an average daily cost per inmate of $107—the lowest of the five prisons on the list of potential closures. The Commonwealth will incur additional costs to shuttle inmates between their new facility and the Mercer County Courthouse for arraignments, hearings, and trials. Further, the Mercer County Jail was constructed within a half-mile of SCI Mercer with the effect of reducing costs for both the state and the county. The state Board of Probation and Parole is currently able to take state parolees directly to state prison in Mercer; the Mercer County Jail will be forced to absorb that additional cost to temporarily house parolees when there is a violation.

In addition, the facility analysis provided by the Department in announcing plans to close two prisons is inaccurate, with the effect of inflating the costs of maintaining SCI Mercer. The analysis indicates that the prison's perimeter road needs repair work and repaving; that work has been completed. Further, the analysis mentions an unspecified number of underground fuel tanks that must be replaced; that process has already begun at SCI Mercer. We are unable to determine if the analysis factors in the lower overtime costs at SCI Mercer as compared to higher costs at other facilities and are concerned this oversight may be painting an incomplete picture of the continued operating costs of the prisons.

The facility analysis also fails to capture some of the potentially sunk costs of recent investments in SCI Mercer. Pennsylvania has invested nearly $20 million into upgrading SCI Mercer over the past decade alone—money that would be simply wasted if the facility is mothballed this year. The prison treats its own sewage and has upgraded its sewage system with a dewatering press that has the potential to save the Commonwealth upwards of $300,000 annually. It is worth noting that the grounds of SCI Mercer are actually an asset to the Commonwealth, as it sits on additional acreage that would allow state-of-the-art expansion to house additional prisoners should the need arise.

Even more subtle costs would be shifted onto the community if SCI Mercer were shuttered. The Department's own website touts the benefits of SCI Mercer's participation in the Community Work Program, which has—among many other contributions—leveraged 9,376 hours of community service, saving at least $67,976 in wages. And those contributions manifest in more important ways than simply dollars and cents: SCI Mercer serves local food banks, fire departments, recreation centers, fairgrounds, and the well-known highway cleanup initiative. SCI Mercer has implemented the innovative CARE Canine Program, in which inmates train stray dogs from Strayhaven Animal Shelter to ease their transition into adoption.

Our argument against the potential closure of SCI Mercer is not simply a case of elected officials trying to protect the local economy, as important as those jobs and cost-savings are. This is also a criminal justice matter. There has been broad recognition over the past decade across the political spectrum that policymakers must find a better way to punish and rehabilitate criminal offenders. We can significantly reduce prison populations—leading to even lower costs for the Commonwealth—and better protect our communities if we can reduce the incidence of recidivism. Closing SCI Mercer would have the opposite effect, exacerbating the factors that lead convicted criminals to reoffend.

SCI Mercer is a minimum-security facility, housing the types of offenders who can successfully reenter society if they are given the supports they need. In fact, SCI Mercer has a reputation as one of the best state prisons for successful reintroduction of ex-inmates. Many of the inmates are from the area, and they are able to maintain ties to their families and support networks because they are housed locally. Those contacts will be stretched and, often, severed if inmates are removed to a location more than one hour away, especially in light of the region's limited public transportation systems. And when these inmates are released at the end of their sentences, we risk setting them free into an unfamiliar town with no safety net to help them reintegrate into society.

As the economies of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and other urban centers naturally leverage their growing populations into successful industry, the Commonwealth has the freedom to prioritize small-town and rural Pennsylvania for economic development. Many state prisons around the Commonwealth have their own challenges, including the deteriorating facility in Pittsburgh, and many of the unique services provided at other prisons have been recently implemented or can be readily transferred to a site such as SCI Mercer. We should be expanding facilities like SCI Mercer, not considering shifting their functions to other, thriving areas of the state.

We are speaking with a united voice—Senators and Representatives. Republicans and Democrats—and we are joined by community leaders representing the judiciary, law enforcement, community development, and other interests in urging you to remove SCI Mercer from the list of potential prison closings. We are requesting that additional public hearings be held so the Department can further evaluate the impact of closing prisons in small towns such as Mercer.

We believe you will agree with us that there are few places in this Commonwealth where the impact of jobs that pay will be greater than in Mercer County. Please hear our call and hear our citizens' voices when we ask you to stand up for strong small-town economies, prudent state investment, and smart criminal justice policies.

225 Main Capitol
Harrisburg, PA

Dear Governor Wolf:

As the executive directors of the four chambers of commerce that represent Mercer County, a rural area that is a perfect example of all that is the best of small town America, we are sending this letter to share our unified concern about the possible closing of the State Correctional Institution located in Mercer, Pa. Closing this state prison would be devastating to the local economy in our county and the Western Pennsylvania region. We urge you and the Department of Corrections to remove the SCI Mercer from the list of state prisons that may be closed in 2017.

The county's unemployment rate is 5.5% - higher than the state's unemployment rate of 4.9%. A facility closing of this magnitude would just add to the employment challenges in our county. Though our rural area can't begin to compete with the attention paid to larger areas in Pennsylvania, such as Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, it is because of this very rural nature that Mercer County and the surrounding region needs the attention all the more and the support of our state governor's office protecting our jobs and quality of life.

If the state decides to close our Mercer SCI, more than 400 jobs will be lost, increasing our county's unemployment rate and potentially pushing those displaced to relocate to out of the area, which will in turn create a ripple effect, creating a downturn in our local tax base and school systems among other challenges. We already contend with a median household income that is below $30,000 and the loss of SCI Mercer's competitive wages in our county would have a dire effect on an already troubled local and regional economy.

Another unfortunate ripple effect of this potential closure includes the loss of SCI Mercer's participation in the Community Work Program and the assistance they provide to our county's food bank, fire departments and highway cleanup initiative, among others. Sadly there are few places in the state that would be as harshly impacted as Mercer County would be if SCI Mercer is shut down.

Because of the urgency of this potential job loss, the four chambers of Mercer County are sending a united message to Harrisburg asking to remove SCI Mercer from the list of potential closings. We also request an additional hearing to make our case against shutting down this much needed job resource in our county. Please show us that our rural county's economy, which has a demonstrable need to keep every job it can within its border, is important to our state capitol and will be supported by our state government.

Governor Wolf:

I am writing in regard to the recent announcement that the Commonwealth is planning to close two state correction institutes (SCIs). According to recent reports, and additionally communicated to me by a visit from your Secretary of Corrections, SCI-Mercer is one of the five SCIs being considered for closure. SCI-Mercer resides in the 3rd Congressional District, which I currently represent in the U.S. House of Representatives.

I recognize that the decision to close a state prison lies within the jurisdiction of state officials such as yourself and not mine as a federal representative. I am simply writing today as a representative of the good people of Mercer County and asking that you delay this announcement until a study on the local economic impact on all communities involved can be completed. I join several of my federal colleagues on the eastern side of the Commonwealth in this request. It is also my understanding that the state legislature is in the process of organizing hearings on these potential closures.

While I can understand and appreciate the need for cost-cutting measures, our constituents are hoping for a thorough and transparent process when making this decision, especially since the livelihoods of more than 400 families are in jeopardy.

Thank you for your consideration. I appreciate you sending Secretary Wetzel to Washington, DC, earlier this week to brief me and my other colleagues who face potential SCI closings in their districts. Mercer County has a strong set of County Commissioners and, combined with their lead Economic Development Agency, Penn Northwest Development Corporation, I am confident that they can provide you any information that you may need when making this tough decision.

If I can be of any assistance, please do not hesitate to contact me through my District Director, Brad Moore, at 814-454-8190 or brad.moore@mail.house.gov.

Sincerely,

To Whom It May Concern,

Mercer County is a vibrant rural community that depends on jobs like those at the State Correctional Facility to support families in our neighborhoods. The closure of SCI Mercer would be a devastating loss to our area.

Our organization has benefited greatly over the years from their Community Work Program. The ability to rely on these types of programs help our non-profit organization to financially survive in our current economy and has aided in our being able to offer a family tradition at our Fair for almost 150 years! Through this program, inmates learn valuable rehabilitative skills that will help them as they re-enter society while offering our organization valuable labor and service. The Community Work Program has helped us with our fairground maintenance in various projects through the years such as painting, mulching, clean-up work after the fair, putting memorial benches in winter storage and more. The staff at SCI Mercer has been great to work with through the years ... efficient and professional. If SCI Mercer is closed, we will definitely miss these valuable services.

We feel the loss of jobs at the SCI and the loss of the Community Work Program would truly be a detriment to our area. Mercer County is built of strong families, neighborhoods, and organizations, but we are fighting an uphill battle with struggling schools, opioid addictions and job losses. Our organization is committed to providing family traditions, educational experiences, and community building events and we would appreciate your partnership in that. Our rural area is working hard and we would appreciate your support by keeping SCI Mercer open.

Thank You,

Shirley A. McIntire

President

The Great Stoneboro Fair
